[20&21] Read the passage and answer the questions.

Right now, she would have cheerfully swapped places with anyone. "I want to be different, that's what I want," she said to the ants. "Just look at all the others. Ashleigh has (a) heaps of friends. Logan always comes first in races at the sports carnival. Mai's got great clothes and her hair always looks terrific. And Kristy - look at Kristy!" Maddy thought about Kristy. She was so good at singing and dancing she was on the short list for some new TV talent program. Compared to all her friends, Maddy felt like a big nothing. What was she good at? Computers and maths, that was about it. Nobody thought that was very exciting. She leaned back against a branch and sighed. "You know what I wish, ant? I wish I could be musical like Kristy. Emily had two normal eyes just like everyone else. So she had no problem seeing. And it's true that having the extra eye could be fun. She used it to see around corners and through cracks in the floor or holes in the wall. She could look behind her when she was walking without even turning her head. At school she could face her teacher and still look out the window with her finger. When people asked her if she liked having an eye on her finger, she would say, "On the one hand I like it. But on the other hand I don't." Emily could do many things with her eyefinger. But sometimes she was sad because there were things that everyone else could do but she couldn't.

- ① Emily used the eyefinger to see around corners and through cracks in the floor.
- ② Emily could look behind her when she was walking without turning her head.
- ③ Emily likes having an eye on her finger very much.

You look at the telescope screen to see if you can see anything interesting. On the screen you can see two stars, a large one and a small one. The small one is shooting gas millions of kilometers into space. "What's that object?" you ask the computer. "I think it is a black hole," says the computer. "It's eating the star on the right." "I thought that black holes were always black," you say. "You can't see a black hole, but you can see material going into a black hole. Some of the brightest objects in the Universe are caused by this process. If a star goes near a black hole, the black hole will attract material from the star. The black hole will 'eat' the star and the material will spiral into the black hole. Some of this material is fired millions of kilometers into space from the center of the black hole. It's like an enormous gun."

23. What does a black hole do if a star goes near it?

- ① It will attack the star.
- ② It will abandon the star.

- ④ They are formed by a black hole being in space.

We had such great times together. We were rival comedians. Well, I was the funniest, really; except in that house. These days anyone can be a rock climber, even if there's no mountain nearby. All you need is a gym with a climbing wall! It's not a mountain and it's not made of rock, but if you want to learn to climb, this is the place to go. Climbing walls are mostly found in gyms, but some sporting goods stores have them too. You must pay to climb the walls in gyms. Often the walls in stores are free - at least for short periods of time. Both places show you how to climb, and they have people called spotters to keep you from falling when you are on the wall. There are several major differences between going up a climbing wall and a mountain. Climbing walls are made to look rocky, but they have plastic handholds and footholds. After several trips up the climbing wall you will learn where the handholds and footholds are. You can't do that on a mountain. On a mountain you have to search for a spot to hold onto every time. Also, outdoor rock climbers carve out handholds and footholds if they can't find one.

Some people in Canada say they have seen a very large creature covered with hair. They call it Sasquatch. The name means 'hairy giant.' This creature has been seen in the United States, too.
